The screenshot displays the Netsparker 0.9.9.9935 (Private Beta) interface. The main window shows a vulnerability report titled "Admin User DB Connection" with a severity of "Important". The report includes a "Table of Content" with links to "Admin User DB Connection", "Non Technical", "Impact", "Remediation", and "External References". A "Summary" section states: "Netsparker identified that the target web site connecting the backend database by using a user that has administrative privileges. This issue has been confirmed by checking the connection privileges via an identified SQL Injection vulnerability in the application." The source "freesoftwarefree.com" is listed at the bottom of the report.
